Scientific interests: I am interested on animal behaviour and movement ecology and its interplay with life history theory. I am interested in understanding what the ecological drivers of animal behavioural decisions are within an eco-evolutionary perspective and their outcomes in life history, which is essential for acknowledge the functioning of populations, and additionally in exploring how different anthropogenic stressors may affect the dynamics of wild animal populations and their evolving traits. My current work focuses on the ecology of fish within the context of fisheries induced evolution, and mainly addressed from the theoretical side. To meet theory with empirical data is one of my goals for future works.

Keywords: Behavioural syndrome, Bioenergetics, Fish ecology, Fisheries Induced Evolution, Home Range behaviour, Life history traits, Movement Ecology, Pace of Life Syndrome.
